Mtg w/ Ann Klenk + Dr. Tony Carolaro (12 pm - 3 pm)

[] Dwyer, SZ

1. Papers provided to Rosenbaum (Vanity Fair) - papers that Tony took out of Danny's house. Notes ref to ~~the~~ Robert Booth Nichols. Rough notes. IRE (Investigative Reporter's and Editor's Assn) - Univ. of Missouri School of Journalism - Columbia, Mo. (314) 882-2042 Andy Scott.

2. Sequence: [David Rajiq - Good student; interested in hydro docs.] Tracy Barnett - Acting Director (IRE)

Ann went to home; met w/ Mary Ellen + Roger Slaney (Georgetown U.); Roger took down home, next day Ann took stuff to Nightline; allowed other reporters to look at the material; looked through stuff w/ Nightline producer Tom Sorenson;

3. Danny interested in BNL, Carlson, - source = Bickel. Wackerhut - Calson Indians; John Nichols; Reconesints Cherry Pitt + Antony - Bruschi - used to make chemical weapons for Iraq; Wackerhut + crooked customs agents.

4. "Danny had become so involved with the story, it was all-consuming". He had become very grim toward the end. It became an obsession of Danny's. Saw change in Danny's personality during July & August working 20 hours day. Home was, on phone w/ Nichols constantly. Ann saw Danny frequently before his death. Ann was one of the closest to Danny at that time. Ann worked for Jack Anderson at the time. He was coming into office. They spoke 2-3 times day. Danny kept certain things from Ann b/c he was afraid she might scoop him & put out story. But they trusted each other.

Tony: Danny was talking about his work, held back some info. July 20 - Tony & Danny together for 5 hours. Danny said Nichols was a thug, that B. Nichols scared him, that B. Nichols had killed 2 people. There were some things Danny didn't want to tell Ann Danny also close to Ben Nelson, spent lots of time w/ him, friend of his. Also spoke daily to Dr. Lewis Petrella, a psychologist in Westfield, Mass., spoke to Danny every day, both used same literary agent, Herb Carlis. Danny also met someone from CIA & someone from Time Warner. Petrella wrote 3 page letter to U.S. P.D. ^{with check, Big box Morris + Storage (303) 573-5620}

5. Nurse that Danny spoke to: Ann Marie Winfield - (Art's wife) - Danny called Tony in May or June; asked about "slow viruses". Danny talked to Ann Marie about MS, "cervical" - affects arm/legs; "Jacob Kitzfield" - ran clinic that had turned up at NIH. Danny may or may not have been asking about MS. He constantly asked Tony about his condition. 2 yrs before he died, Danny saw Dr. Stan Zinnat (Tony's partner) about numbness in foot. Tony teased Danny about MS then. ~~For~~ Danny had cat scan once, 18 mos. before he died, after he dropped a barbell on his head. Cat scan normal - can't detect MS w/ a cat scan; need MEE. Donny also talked about visual trouble; few months before he died Donny had trouble while driving Ann's car at night.

6. Ann saw symptoms too -

a) Month before he died couldn't open a window

b) Couldn't finish volleyball game

c) Couldn't point at Bill Webster's house.

d) Said: I'm having trouble thinking, having trouble organizing the book; assumed it was writer's block; if I can't think I'll commit suicide - about 2 months before he died - but it wasn't a threat or a promise.

Ann - "I don't think he knew he had MS - if he committed suicide it wasn't just his mental condition - it was anything"

7. Donny upset about:

a) Failure to publish book + get advance. - lack of success

b) Obsession of story

8. "Mad cow" disease, slow viruses; John Halkett.

FOIA(b)(7) - (D)
36 CFR 1256.58 - Law Enforcement

9. "Ex-FBI" Source -

[Redacted]

called Tony twice

after Donny died - said Donny had been dealing w/ some dangerous people.

[Redacted]

This call happened in two weeks after

Donny died.

[Redacted]

see Donny transcripts.

10. Not sure when Danny got T-ET's for WCA, but Ann believes it might have been from Gordon.
11. Ann last saw Danny Monday before he died. Danny said he spoke Trushka, Jack Anderson or Ann could have the story, "Bill Hamilton's going to be real excited" - but Danny said that "w/ a disgust." Danny had falling out w/ Bill Hamilton & Hamilton leaked Calogan story to SF Chronicle. Hamilton never supported Danny financially. Ann reports other people. Danny said he was going to W.Va. Danny called Ann every day of his life for 12 yrs. Danny called Ann Tuesday. Ann didn't hear from Danny Saturday, so she called Tony.
12. Tony last saw Danny on Monday; at hospital (Tony's daughter had some surgery) - Danny ~~said~~ was tired, he said he had been getting threats; said "don't believe if it's an accident."
13. Ann ~~thought~~ saw Danny Monday night at bar. Danny hunched over, drinking a beer, looked terrible. Ann ordered a pizza. Danny not excited. He offered to give the story away. This is not how a reporter would act if he had just broken a great story, Danny said he had "just gotten back" from W.Va., and he was going back.
14. Ann thinks the individuals agent should be investigated further.
15. Prior incident - falling off roof at Bill Webster's home. Danny called Ann at 5 a.m. Said he'd spent the night on the roof. Said he'd fallen off the roof. ~~Danny~~ ~~Week~~ later Danny picked Ann up. He had a huge cut on his leg. Danny said it was from the roof.

Bill called Ann. He found a broken ceramic owl, and lots of bloody towels in the basement. Probably occurred in ^{mid} May '92, Ann not sure. - Danny may have called Tony to the doctor a tetanus shot; not sure.

16. Robert Booth Nichols was Danny's main source. B. Nichols in D.C. in July. Geo. Pittoway, friend of Danny's, lobbyist for Bouwmeester & Thailand (703) 683-5559. Geo. + Wesley Weiss both met w/ B. Nichols. Danny signed a $25,000 lease in Danny's name to B. Nichols. B. Nichols must have been to Danny's house - _{of}

17. Danny got 90-day extension on balloon payment.

Outstanding loans:

• $5,000 from Tony

• $20,000 from sister

Danny knew he could rely on his family for money.

18. Danny called his mother from W.Va. - said he couldn't show up for Weci's birthday party, Tony spoke to him. Danny mentioned "Pennsylvania" - maybe he'd been there on way to W.Va. Possibly she was going to meet Marjorie Glazer at Kennamethel.

19. Phone records - Reb + Garin were trying to trace phone records. Danny made call to "Red Apple" store in W.Va. - all in union to Tony. Danny's younger brother would also have.

20. Tony gave post - Aug. 2 phone calls to somebody, maybe to FBI - almost no calls after Aug. 2. (Friday).

21. Skerton phone records - curious that there were no calls from hotel room phone.
22. Bill Hamilton introduced Danny to Ricoesquints.
~~Ricoesquints introduced~~ Hamilton introduced Danny to B. ditto.
David Spivak (Lakoula org.) introduced himself to Tony, said that Danny justly murdered. (Stinky from Lakoula org.)
23. Autopsy report - findings on Danny's body -
 - a) Danny didn't chew fingernails
 - b) Danny didn't take drugs
 - c) Cocaine - Danny was allergic - would make him throw up
 - d) No alcohol in body - ~~that~~ Danny wouldn't had more to drink to get courage.
24. Danny not drunk - he went to bar to socialize, He'd sip beers. He smoke too much.
25. Danny drank beer & wine.

26. Tony last met w/ Martensby PD in 1/92.

27. Danny was in library Friday night. Police didn't find out.
Tony spoke to librarian. Unsolved Mysteries talked to her.
Patterns of Martensby dust.

a) Danny afraid of needles

b) Failure to I.D. Mid-Eastern guy in bar

c) Failure to identify Friday night whereabouts

d) Telephone call - Sunday - Don Bishop - Village Voice - gets call 3pm on inside line - someone said journalist & name Don Corlano ~~was~~ killed/found dead; needs to be investigated. Bishop called Klenk on Tuesday, he was leaving the county - had Ann about the phone call. Bishop was very rattled.

e) Why would Danny stay at the Quarter - he didn't have enough money.

f) Why would he get a tray of coffee so late? (Friday night).
Why would he buy bottle of wine to room - Ann think he might have been meeting a woman.

28. Danny & Geo. Attorney met ^{led} Brackley's girlfriend on July 4, '92.
Took her home & looked through Danny's pages. Jim Ridgway from Village Voice was spoke to Danny's last girlfriend. Works at restaurant in London. Wendy — (not Wenaer).

29. Vidiniks / B. Dunn - Tony not sure.

Ann says this is too much of a coincidence.

30. Lynn Knowles - talked to Tony, didn't want to be identified. She told Tony that Jimmy met Joe Culler in a bar. (Sign of the whale). B. Dunn guy was Culler. Lynn, Jimmy + Culler went to bar in Co. town. Culler told Lynn that Jimmy should deny the story or he'd be killed. Culler assigned to Southern Command. Jimmy always under cover. Culler was going to get up a net of Vidiniks - Lynn told this to Tony. Culler's ex-wife or ex-girlfriend worked in Sen. Boyd's office.

Tony speculates that Culler was arranging for a net between Jimmy and Vidiniks. Jack Anderson tried to interview Sen. Boyd after Jimmy died, Boyd refused to speak on or off the record.

31. Jimmy once got mad at Ann after she told Cong. Ross that Jimmy thought he had connected Bill to BUI.

32. Bill Hamilton called Tony the other day to ask about ongoing investigation into Jimmy's death.

33. Tony Casper spoke to SIA Courtney West one week after Jimmy died. West said he had some info. Not appropriate ~~also~~ to talk now. Said he had a source who thought Jimmy murdered. Courtney said a call came to Tony the called Markingby RLS office (John Moran). Moran said "I'd be remiss if I didn't follow up." - But 7 months later Courtney called Tony, said

Jim Ridgway
from V. My. V. Inc talked to Culler

332-1818

966-2362

Moran never called.

34. Tony & Ann met w/ Courtney West. Courtney said he didn't know Danny. Ann took note of meeting with him. He didn't give up much info. ~~But~~ ~~Ann~~ Courtney called Blonded Myrtles, the Ann called Courtney, the day met at Hunter's at 9:30 pm.

36. Bill Turner - Tony talked to him 2 days after Danny died. Turner called Tony. Said he first talked to Danny one year earlier. Danny in Alexandria. Turner lives in Winchester, Va. Turner met Danny at Greater Parking Lot. Turner gave Danny some papers. Danny spoke to him for 20 mins. ~~Turner~~ ~~Met~~ on Friday afternoon. Turner called Greater on Saturday at 11:30 looking for Danny. Tony called Turner back. Tony forgot Turner was stayed Greater. Turner had worked at Hayes airport. ~~to~~

Importance of Turner is that he was one of last people to see Danny alive. Turner wasn't a key source for Danny. Turner gave Danny papers related to Hayes airport, wanted Danny to see if connected to Ostapa. ~~Danny~~ ~~Turner~~ ~~said~~ B. Nichols was worked at Hayes; B. Nichols once talked to J. Cicippio about meeting of B. Nichols.

Richard Stain

- One and only time they spoke.
1. 1st contact - 10 days before Danny died, Danny called Stain, at Stain's office. Danny explained what he was looking at, etc. Danny was "frustrated and excited" - upset.

[Stain's phone # at time: 450-6695]

Danny discussed Booth Nichols - D. said he'd met him ^{twice before} 70's per that Danny said he was going to meet Robert Booth Nichols ~~in the~~ in the near future (Danny didn't say West Virginia).

Danny said he'd spoken to John Cohen at House Judiciary.

Possible that Nichols may have had Iran - Contra connection, and that Danny was about to expose it.

Danny was concerned about Nichols - wanted to know from Stain whether he should be concerned about Booth Nichols.

2. Paul Coffey may have spoken to Nichols about becoming an informant. Nichols may have met w/ Coffey in the late 70's.

3. During phone call, Danny may have brought up Coleman Indian reservation.
4. Stain did tell Danny that Booth worked, had offered to become a snitch. - Nichols wanted to get gov't credentials.
5. Stain told Danny that Nichols had some historical organized crime connections.

~~6.~~

6. Conversation w/ Danny lasted 45 minutes - 1 hour.

12/7/93

Dr. Tony Casolare

1. Saw Dr. Zimmet only once
2. Got cut ~~at~~ scan when bar bell fell on head - done at Fair Oaks Hospital - approx March 1990.
3. Will -- left everything to Trey. Will had been done several years earlier - Tony was executor. Trey got life insurance and ~~home~~ house.
4. ^{4_{th}} Trey is renting house now. Danielle Stelling is employee is living there.
5. Joe Lane was Tony's insurance agent - Richmond, Va. Total payoff to Trey was approx. $450,000. 3 policies - 250,000 - 100,000 each
6. Mother's phone bill -- may belong to Jim Ridgeway.

FROM: Fredilyn Sison
DATE: December 15, 1993
RE: Casolero

I called Regina Richardson at 7:00 p.m. on 12/14/93 and got her machine. I left no message.

I called her again at 7:50 p.m., got her machine and left a message identifying myself as a Special Assistant in the Criminal Division of DOJ, gave her my number and asked her to call me later that night or the next day.

She left a message on my voice mail on 12/15/93, saying she would be home all morning.

I called her at 10:00 a.m., told her that I had read her "Unsolved Mysteries" letter and asked if she had any information about Casolero's death. She said that she hadn't seen the show, but her daughter had called and said she saw it as it was going off the air. Her daughter told her there was a military man had placed a flower on the casket and that Casolero's family wanted to know who he was. She wrote "Unsolved Mysteries" because she wanted a composite of this man. She said they never replied and she contacted them again but they never got back to her. She wanted to know if I had a composite. I told her no and asked her if she had any first-hand information about Casolero.

She said she didn't but just from her experience in the past, she knew that something wasn't right. She started to talk about people who visited her house, strange phone calls and her ex, but I cut her off before she said much about any of these topics and asked again if she knew anything about Casolero. She said no, she just had feelings. I thanked her and hung up.

The phone call lasted less than 3 minutes.

Dear Congressman Staggers,

My name is Jeanie Richardson Rich, soon to be (Spray) ex-wife of Wayne A. Rich, executive director of U. S. Attorneys, Dept. of Justice, Wash. D. C.

I am elated that the investigation of the death of Danny Casaleo has been reopened and I would welcome an opportunity to speak with anyone who could arrange to speak with me. Please.

I have been subjected to a nightmare lifestyle for years partially because of threatening to expose certain information I was mistakenly made aware of. When I made the threat it was because of the intense psychological abuse I had been subjected to for years. It's a long story as you might well guess.

I do not trust the mail and absolutely do not discuss anything but trivial matters on the phone. Believe me, I have valid reasons.

I am enclosing my mothers address.
In the event that someone can speak with me you may notify me by mail and enclose any phone numbers where I may contact anyone who might be willing to hear me out.

My mothers address is:

Regina Richardson
c/o Route 4 Box 610
Weston, W. V. 26452

I have much information to share and who knows what might be of help in the investigation.

Regardless, will you please send a card of acknowledgement of having received this correspondence.

Sincerely Yours,

Jeanie Richardson Rich

TC Jim Ridgeway, Village Voice - 1747 Connecticut Ave. NW
Wash. DC 20009

Worked with Donny Vaughn - relatively straightforward guy

Interviewed Donny's friends and girlfriends

Friends all said he seemed in ill health. R. thinks he may have been more ill than he appeared.

Ann Marie Winfield - nurse; Donny asked her about MS complex there.

Donny knew he was having physical problems.

Vaughn interviewed police in Martinsburg. Vaughn thought police investigation was pretty thorough.

Embalmery - a mistake, not sinister.

Late notice to family - not sinister.

Only people to who said he was murdered were Korka.

Notes for guide -

- Professional failure
- Ill health
- Incident in Corquian there that got him angry
- Nutty people were passing crazy theories back and forth through Donny.

Donny was a creep; a low level con man; doesn't work for any intelligence agencies; probably tried to con Donny out of his house.

LaRouche suspect - LaRouchian desperate to generate controversy because LaRouche on trial. They were saying that Salamy had a big story, etc. - Danny Thed done from LaRouchian, Steinberg hooked Komerinto to introduce him to Hamilton.

Determine if any payments made to him. from Hamilton or LaRouche people.

Oleg - Unreliable - Death Threats could have come from LaRouchian

Joe Laddler - Interviewed him - Met in bar in Alexandria.
Typical green belt type guy. - Vaughn called him

Wendy - (not Wendy deare) - lives in Reston; had met washi or nephew of Komerito Shook.

William Turner - Crazy

Elliot Richardson got picked.

Not a man of action

Israhim - Knows of porter of passport.

12/10/93

Paul Zimmet

1. Saw Danny 3-4 times

2. Jan. / Feb. '91 - Saw Danny; I said involved in big investigation; lots of lecture; Johnny said if you ever find a dead, don't believe it. - but said a throwaway line.

3. Didn't see widely

4. Other patient - Tom Hardy (ent Prof. ab. Virgin Community College - curri died in Middleburg, mysterious circumstances).

5. Vizodine presc. prescribed - not from Zimmet, from one person (Dr. Levin)

a) Oct 11, 1990 - Toothache - sent to Dr. Stan Levin, Falls Church - He presc. on prescription. - 12/28/90 - finished root canal

b) Jan. 17, 91 - Tooth capped w/ crown

~~of Stan~~

6. Dr. Zimmet gave no presc. to Danny.

7. Never evidenced any fear of blood. Normal patient.

12/13/93

TC w/ Dan Bishoff

1. Did get phone call on 8/11. Didn't pay any attention to it until Monday 8/12 - wrote short story after news became public.
2. Rest of call - may have mentioned Jerry's name, may have mentioned about a reporter who got killed. Was at office; intern there; - Caller was asking if Bishoff; no recall of caller said "W. Va" or "Martinsburg".
3. Told John Klein about the call immediately after cell came in. ^{(206) 784-2276} Dan called John long-distance immediately after cell came in.

4. Sunday evening - after sundown, late at night. - Caller was male; guff voice
5. Two calls followed; one about Kevin + Calogeros, then ~~at~~ a third call, about Jimmy. - These calls came weeks later.
6. John wanted it to be true that Jimmy was murdered - but now believes he killed himself.
7. Think he sent an e-mail after phone call, but not sure.
8. Bishop may once have spoken to Jimmy, but not sure.
9. Call came in on direct, cards like; lots of conspiracy stuff and reporters knew the number.

10. LaRouchie to her Bishop's number.
11. Phone call not that significant - might not even her see about Corlora - Bishop's that, caller might have said "you're" who'd been killed. Don't make Bishop think that

Re: Dan Bishoff - ~~597~~ (212) 695-7157

Smart guy, but synapses sometimes mixed up.

Must have gotten data wrong.

Ridgeway really tried to get down the data, but couldn't.

Bishoff says he sent a computer message to his editor, but he doesn't remember exactly when.

Ridgeway concludes it must be a mix-up.

12/14/93

Olga + George Mokerov

1. Depressed
2. Sick - Said he was sick
3. Olga claims to see middle customer at Jerry's house on Tues.
4. George answered phone occasionally but never heard through calls.
5. Told Olga "I won't see Trey" as he was leaving for work, in answer to Olga's statement - "Trey is coming next week, - I better fix his bed." "Why won't you see Trey" - "I don't know." Then Jerry showed Olga where the his will was located - in file cabinet in office.

Lynn Knowles

1. Met at Sign of the Whale - approx year before he died
2. Jimmy confided details of his work w/ Lynn and other people. He was excited about it.
3. Met Cueller in '91 - He had just gotten back from desert storm. Went to West Point. Lynn looked him up in your book. Someone else Lynn knew also knew Joe. Approx '77. Short, looked later, medium complexion, 5'7", gold jewelry, good physique, was wearing uniform - Army (major) - military intelligence, when met Jimmy.
4. First time met us at Sign of the Whale. Lynn went to meet Jimmy. 1-2 pm. Lynn got there first. Joe already there. Lynn went to bookstore. Lynn came back; Jimmy already talking to Joe (Jimmy said later that he'd seen Joe's BSI card). Joe & Lynn talked about a book Lynn was doing.
5. Joe said he'd worked for BSI but quit before Desert Storm; had no address or number.
6. Saw each other for few months, Joe working for reserves. Later he got a Dept of Army business card. He had apt in Old Town on King Street & Fayette. Reg Henderson
7. Last saw him shortly after Jimmy died. Was going to go to a party.

8. After first visit, had two additional visits w/ Harry & Joe -

a) Sonarber in Old Town - 4 hours - discussion was very substantive. Lynn heard some, but not a lot. Discussion lively, lots of the same names come up.

b) Tiffanys - Lynn was supposed to go, but didn't.

9. Joe claims to be Special Force, Intelligence.

10. Gallerie La Taj
1203 King Street
Old Town
Culler supposed to exhibit photos there.

11. Divorced; had one son.

12. Culler said that military intelligence overlapped w/ CIA; and he sometimes worked for CIA.

13. After Harry died he went to Panama.

14. Joe told Lynn that Harry was in serious danger; that he should stop what he's doing. Lynn would tell Harry; Harry would say, "Oh, I'm just a reporter."

15. After Danny died, Lynn didn't hear from Joe. Lynn called Joe two days later; told him Danny had died. Joe said "you're kidding"; then said "I told him to stay away from that building in Georgetown." Lynn said "what building"; then Joe said "forget it."
16. Joe told Lynn to tell family that Joe would help w/ whatever they needed; Joe offered to take up investigation.
17. Lynn later confronted Lynn about the fly in Georgetown, Joe got angry and said "you're asking too many questions; stop thinking; it doesn't matter if they like you, it's just business. You have two little girls, you wouldn't do yourself any favors if you ended up like Danny or that reporter in Guatemala."
18. Joe asked about Danny county Lynn or Joe to meet about South Dakota
19. Joe said he was "best friends" w/ Vidovics; said he'd arrange a meeting w/ Danny. Joe also goes to get former BAE security (man) to get files for Danny.

20. Joe said he knew Gen. Byrd, and his former wife or former girlfriend worked for Gen. Byrd.
21. Lynn can't remember exactly when she got to Army. Didn't know he was going to WVA.
22. Danny's frame of mind - "guy"
23. ~~He~~ "No way he committed suicide." Not materialistic, his personality didn't change. He wasn't depressed.
24. Lynn & Cueller went to funeral.
25. Danny not heavy drinker - social drinker - had only 1/2 beer couple beers in a night.
26. Danny didn't appear to be sick.
27. Lynn's other boyfriend = Pete.

12/14/93

Dr. Levin - Oral Surgeon (703) 734-5884

1. Root canal - 12/19/90 - 12/28/90
2. No fear of needles, pain, blood, etc. - looks
3. No notation of Vizolin prescription.
4. Didn't pay his complete bill - Estate wrote back that no money left to pay bill.

Set forth below is information obtained from individuals interviewed regarding captioned matter:

12/7/93 [redacted] FBI, Winchester Virginia
Resident Agency:

[redacted] advised that WILLIAM RICHARD TURNER, aka Bill Turner, white male, date of birth [redacted] SSAN: [redacted] FBI# [redacted] 5'11", 150 lbs. was involved in two bank robberies in the Winchester, Virginia vicinity in April, 1991 and September 1992. In September, 1992, based upon the description of the bank robber and the get-a-way car, TURNER's vehicle was located in the Winchester area and this vehicle as well as the description of TURNER matched those of the bank robber. Based upon this information, the local Winchester authorities obtained a search warrant for TURNER's residence during which the clothes worn in the bank robbery and the bag used in the bank robbery were located. In addition, a nylon bag matching the description from the April, 1991 bank robbery was also found and TURNER was charged locally with both bank robberies. Approximately $1,000 was further located in his residence which TURNER could not justify. However, due to the fact that neither victim tellers in the 1991 and 1992 bank robberies could identify TURNER, the charges were dismissed locally and a Federal Grand Jury for the EASTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA failed to indict TURNER for either bank robbery. It was further determined however, that the Winchester RA still maintains possession of the money obtained from TURNER's residence in lieu of the fact that TURNER entered into a plea agreement with the U.S. Attorney's Office, EASTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA, in 1992 for his involvement in fraudulent activity with the VETERANS ADMINISTRATION. In addition, the WINCHESTER POLICE DEPARTMENT still maintains possession of some of the material obtained from TURNER's residence including notebooks pertaining to his activities.

On 12/13/93, KEN BANYAS, Docket Clerk, U.S. Attorney's Office, Alexandria, Virginia, telephone number (703) 706-3796 advised that TURNER entered into a plea agreement in July, 1991 wherein he pleaded guilty to VETERANS ADMINISTRATION fraud, one count of Title 18 USC Section 1001 wherein he received a sentence of sixty days, five years probation, and a restitution of $47,000. During November, 1991 a civil consent order was further entered into based upon the above charges. BANYAS advised that the files had recently been shipped to the U.S. Attorney's Office, Norfolk, Virginia and that AUSA MARK EXLEY and Paralegal KATHY CARSON, telephone number (804) 441-6331 could provide detailed information with regard to the above plea agreements.

On 12/8/93, [redacted] Lexington Kentucky Resident Agency, advised that a number of years ago he was the case agent of an investigation involving ARI BEN MENASHE wherein MENASHE made allegations that former President GEORGE BUSH, former National Security Advisor ROBERT MCFARLAN and former Secretary of State GEORGE SHULTZ were involved in the "October Surprise" conspiracy with Iran in 1980. [redacted] advised that he had never heard of DANNY CASOLARO prior to an article that appeared in the Village Voice and that he never had intentions of traveling to West Virginia to become involved in the CASOLARO investigation as stated in the article. [redacted] advised however, that at approximately the same time, another agent assigned to the Lexington RA became involved in the investigation of the surplusing of computers formerly utilized by the U.S. Attorney's Office in Lexington Kentucky wherein the records and software contained in the computers had not been erased before surplusing. Allegations were made at that time by CHARLES HAYES against the U.S. Attorney's Office in Lexington, Kentucky and the DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE in regard to the Inslaw investigation and that information that he had obtained from his investigation was more that likely shared with the case agent of this other investigation. However, he had no personally knowledge of that particular investigation and no interest in the death of DANNY CASOLARO.

[redacted] advised that she is the case agent of a pending investigation involving ARI BEN MENASHE regarding his perjury during testimony before the House of Representatives subcommittee and a Senate subcommittee in July, 1991 wherein he testified that he personally observed former President GEORGE BUSH in Paris, France in early 1980 dealing with Iranians regarding the "October Surprise". This was based on his testimony on July 24 and 25, 1991 before the Senate and based upon a perjury statute enacted by Congress making it a federal crime to perjure oneself before either the House of Representatives or the Senate.

On 12/8/93, LARRY STITCH, 8401 Sparger Street, McLean Virginia, telephone number (703) 893-4982 advised that he is the retired General Counsel for the Federal Systems Division of IBM and through his employment with IBM became acquainted with a large number of individuals associated with the aerospace industry and program. STITCH advised that he met DANNY CASOLARO seven to ten years ago when CASOLARO was employed as a journalist, producing a computer magazine and developed a relationship with CASOLARO because of his (STITCH's) ideas about computer software to be used by the legal profession. He further shared similar interests with CASOLARO such as weapons, weapons systems, and political intrigue.

STITCH continued that DANNY would often bounce ideas off of him because of his knowledge of intelligence activities and at one point shortly before his death, questioned STITCH as to how to obtain an advance from a publisher in view of the fact that STITCH had at one time obtained an advance for another author. STITCH provided DANNY with information regarding royalties as well as financial advice regarding his property in Fairfax County.

STITCH advised that DANNY stopped by two days before he left for Martinsburg, West Virginia in August, 1991 and stayed for two to three hours at his place to have dinner with him and his wife. During the conversation, DANNY mentioned that he was going to meet with somebody in regard to his book but did not mention the person's name. STITCH advised that DANNY did not seem to display any depression, however, STITCH considered DANNY to be a laid back, cool individual who could handle frustration and who could conceal his true feelings. STITCH would often say candidly to DANNY that he could not see the connection or the thread of his allegations regarding his overall conspiracy theories. He stated that he doubted that DANNY committed suicide because of his religious feelings having been a practicing Roman Catholic who attended church regularly. He further described CASOLARO as being completely straight, being a completely moral guy and as further being a straight arrow.

On 12/13/93, DANIELLE STALLINGS, telephone number (703) 280-2618 advised that she last saw DANNY CASOLARO on either one of the two Sundays prior to his leaving for West Virginia. She could not recall the exact day but indicated that she last spoke with CASOLARO on the Wednesday before he left for West Virginia. She continued that during the party on the Sunday that he was at her house, that the party was frequented by many individuals, however, only ZOE GABRIELLE MILROY and DANNY were the only ones who stayed there during the entire day. She stated that DANNY was in good spirits during the day, that he went out and bought a blender for them to mix Marguerites, and that he discussed his work including his book and a possible trip during the week. She stated that she did not know that he was going to West Virginia but that he wanted her to set up an appointment for him with John Gordon in McLean Virginia so that he, CASOLARO, could talk to GORDON's mother-in-law about her knowledge of the Philippines. She stated that she represented him in his real estate dealings and knew from this professional relationship with CASOLARO that there was a balloon note coming due shortly on the mortgage on his home and that he had entered into a two year contract with an equity share partner, wherein this partner would receive 50% of the sale of the property in regard to a large real estate transaction involving 300 acres and other homes surrounding his. She indicated that this pressure and the financial difficulties that he was in was causing him some concern.

On Monday or Wednesday of the week that DANNY was found in Martinsburg, West Virginia, she recalled that he called her from his insurance agent's office and over heard him on the telephone asking the people in the office for directions to West Virginia. It was only after his death that she found out from talking to others that he was going to meet BILL TURNER out in Martinsburg, West Virginia.

On 12/13/93, ART and ANNE MARIE WEINFELD, 14537 Oakmere Drive, Fairfax, Virginia (703) 968-7333 advised that Mrs. WEINFELD had known DANNY for a considerable length of time in view of the fact that her father and DANNY's father were old friends. She continued that DANNY's father was her personal physician prior to his death and that her husband, ART had met DANNY and had become good friends with DANNY since their marriage.

Mrs. WEINFELD was specifically questioned as to the incident wherein DANNY asked her questions pertaining to slow acting viruses, Mrs. WEINFELD advised that she teaches nursing at the NORTHERN VIRGINIA COMMUNITY COLLEGE and approximately two to three years ago did extensive research in regard to her teaching duties pertaining to slow acting viruses including multiple sclerosis. She advised that approximately a year and a half before DANNY died, DANNY approached her and questioned her because of his professional interest in multiple sclerosis and slow acting viruses at which time she advised him of her research, the different kinds of slow acting viruses, the symptoms and consequences of contracting multiple sclerosis and other information pertaining to slow acting viruses. She recalled that DANNY had asked her about some strange mad cow disease but could not recall the particulars with regard to his questions. She stated that prior to his death, DANNY seemed to exhibit symptoms of mild multiple sclerosis but to the best of her knowledge was never diagnosed as having multiple sclerosis.

Mr. WEINFELD stated that he talked with DANNY on a weekly if not daily basis and for about one year prior to his death, became fairly close to DANNY in that DANNY would relate to him the activities that he was involved in. Mr. WEINFELD advised that because of this closeness, his wife, ANNE MARIE WEINFELD, stated to him two to three months before DANNY died that DANNY was changing. Mrs. WEINFELD specified that in her opinion DANNY, although exhibiting the same amount of exuberance and enthusiasm, seemed to be unable to carry on a lucid conversation and seemed at times to be very distracted by his thoughts. Both Mr. and Mrs. WEINFELD stated that on Wednesday, prior to DANNY's death, they were in the process of leaving Washington to travel to their beach house and it was their custom to contact DANNY to say good bye during the time they were away from Washington, D.C. They both distinctly recalled that during their conversation with DANNY on that particular Wednesday that Mrs. WEINFELD stated to her husband that something was definitely wrong with DANNY because of his inability to carry on a normal conversation. She stated that at times he rambled on about other things that were not part of the conversation and that it seemed that he had lost touch with reality from time to time. Mr. WEINFELD stated that in reflection that his wife was much more observant than he was and that he could see that DANNY had changed during the last two months prior to his death. Both Mr. and Mrs. WEINFELD stated that they were unaware of the purpose of his trip to West Virginia other than the fact that he was going out to meet somebody in regard to his book but did not know the identity of the person he was planning on meeting.

12/16 (Morn Scott)

1. John Elvin - knew D. several years, but sporadic contact toward end. Wary of what Danny was getting into. Danny called Tuesday; wanted to see John on Saturday to discuss what he came up with in W.Va.

Elvin = journalist

2. Zoe Milroy - Girl at Danielle's house on Sunday; knew Danny 13-14 yrs. Zoe doesn't think there was a conspiracy; "if there was a conspiracy it was Danny conspiring to make people think Danny was killed." Zoe thinks Danny was at the end of his rope, and depressed.

Requested

Confidentially Danny wrote long letter to Trey couple months before death. Very heavy stuff. She ~~was~~ was in of Danny when he wrote the letter. She said it seemed like a suicide note.

Danny an actor on the outside, but very disturbed on the inside.

Strongly believes Danny committed suicide.

3. Jim Pittaway - Author - Danny sucked into conspiracy theory "game"; became involved in psychological lines; obsessed, fantasies, got worse in May-June '91. Jim was a poll bearer during the funeral. When D. described Pittaway was, Jim said had to go to phone co., D. immediately dropped the subject. D. became less connected of real life, lost his grip; definite suicide.

4. Lynn Knowles - Joe Keller said he was at her to meet friends. "Sign of the Whale" in Lemmon's Plaque. - Lynn Knowles = Cynthia.

Subject: CASOLARO REVIEW

Set forth below is the information obtained from the following persons interviewed regarding captioned matter:

On 12/16/93, JOHN ELVIN, Annapolis, Maryland, phone number (410) 263-8351 advised that he was a social acquaintance of DANNY CASOLARO and that he had provided CASOLARO with his first journalistic employment years ago. He stated that he used to be employed by the WASHINGTON TIMES in Washington, D.C., however, has not had that much contact with CASOLARO in the past year since he moved to Annapolis, Maryland. The amount of contact would vary from a few times per week by telephone to seeing CASOLARO once every two weeks and he recalled that during the summer of 1991, CASOLARO would make contact with him a few times each week in order to share information regarding his investigation. ELVIN stated, however, that he was very weary of the project that DANNY was working on, and even though he was interested in the project, he was very reluctant to discuss with DANNY the details of that investigation. He explained that he was somewhat reticent because he was weary of getting into something very dangerous and had requested DANNY to keep the information to himself.

On Tuesday before CASOLARO left to go to West Virginia, ELVIN recalled that he had two ten minute conversations with CASOLARO and that CASOLARO was pushing him to review the "stuff" that DANNY had been working on. As stated above, ELVIN had turned DANNY down on a number of occasions because he was weary of the material and felt that CASOLARO was dealing with some dangerous people. However, CASOLARO insisted and told ELVIN that he would call him when he returned from West Virginia to show ELVIN the progress of his work. ELVIN further recalled that prior to this conversation, CASOLARO has wanted him to meet with ROBERT NICHOLS but because of ELVIN's concern had also turned this request down.

ELVIN stated that he did not know who DANNY was going to meet with in West Virginia and stated that he could provide no information pertaining to his death.

On 12/16/93, ZOE GABRIELLE MILROY, (703) 519-1091 was contacted at which time she requested that her comments be treated confidentially. She advised that of all of CASOLARO's girlfriends, she probably had known for the longest period of time from about thirteen to fourteen years and just prior to his death enjoyed a close but not intimate relationship with him. At the outset of the interview, MILROY advised that she sees things differently than the rest of DANNY's friends or his relatives by stating that he seemed to be at the end of his rope. She said that she does not believe in the conspiracy thing that if there was any conspiracy it was the conspiracy perpetrated by DANNY to have others believe that there was a conspiracy behind his death. She further believes that DANNY perpetrated this conspiracy theory in order to protect the ones he loves as a result of his taking his own life. She continued by stating that this view is also shared by a mutual friend of hers and DANNY's, PETE KENNEDY, a guitarist, whom she met through DANNY. Shortly after DANNY's death, she and PETE confided with each other that they both believe that he committed suicide. MILROY advised that just prior to DANNY's death she was at his house one night at which time DANNY showed her a letter that he had written to his son TREY wherein DANNY was attempting to impart some fatherly advice to his son. She indicated that it was "heavy stuff" wherein he was trying to share the lessons from a father to his son and it seemed like a suicide note. When she asked DANNY whether or not this was a suicide note DANNY tended to push the intent of the note aside and became the actor that he was always so good at being. She advised that following the review of this letter as well as he observation of the fact that DANNY was changing, tried to tell DANNY's brother, Dr. CASOLARO, however, Dr. CASOLARO and his other relatives did not seem to want to except this information.

MILROY stated that she was with DANNY at DANIELLE STALLINGS' house either the Sunday before or a week prior to DANNY going to West Virginia and that was the last time she saw him prior to his death. She does not know why he went to West Virginia or whom he was to meet with but stated that DANNY was a consummate actor by the fact that he would be laughing on the outside but very hurting on the inside.

On 12/16/93, in an attempt to contact LILLIAN PITTAWAY, JIM PITTAWAY was interviewed at (703) 683-5599. PITTAWAY advised that he has known CASOLARO since 1987 having met CASOLARO through his marriage to LILLIAN and knew CASOLARO so well that he was one of CASOLARO's pall bearers at the funeral. At the outset of the conversation, PITTAWAY indicated that it was his strong opinion that CASOLARO had become involved in a conspiracy game, that he had been sucked into it and that he had spent a lot of time dealing with and talking to pathological liars. He continued that over the year prior to CASOLARO's death, he became more driven and obsessive with these people and noted that in February and March, 1991 CASOLARO seemed to sink into a fantasy land which got worst as the year progressed.

PITTAWAY advised that many of the people that CASOLARO was dealing with were so involved in the conspiracy game theory that they were making their careers out of dealing with it. PITTAWAY further advised that he was aware that financially CASOLARO had encountered many problems that he was losing touch with reality and that he was dealing with some perhaps very dangerous people. He advised that he last spoke with CASOLARO on either the Monday or Tuesday before CASOLARO left that he knew CASOLARO was going to West Virginia to meet with someone but did not know that person's identity. He further advised that he smelled a rat with the people CASOLARO was talking to and advised that he saw a definite change in CASOLARO's personality even though CASOLARO remained the same on the outside. PITTAWAY explained that CASOLARO had lost touch with reality when he started to receive threatening phone calls and telling people that he had received these threatening phone calls he, PITTAWAY, strongly suggested that they contact AT&T or the phone company in order to trace the phone calls. Instead of following through on this logical idea, CASOLARO changed the subject indicating that he did not want to engage in this constructive solution to this particular problem. He strongly felt that CASOLARO became less connected with the real life and more and more engaged in weird stuff and living in a fantasy world that he was losing his grip and becoming quite depressed. PITTAWAY further advised he felt that CASOLARO did in fact commit suicide and had shrouded his death in mystery in order to continue his conspiracy theories.

On 12/16/93, LYNN KNOWLES recontacted the writer and advised that she wanted to point to a minor detail of her previous conversation involving the envelope that JOE CUELLAR apparently had received at the bar where they had met him. She wanted to make sure that the agent understood that CUELLAR had mentioned to both CASOLARO and her that he was at the bar at the request of his buddies in order to have a welcome home luncheon and that the bar tender whom she knew as ACYNTHA also known as CINDY had passed an envelope from his buddies to him at that time. Again she reiterated that this took place at the Sign of the Whale at LOHMANS PLAZA, Route 50, Arlington, Virginia. She described CINDY as being an attractive blonde in her early to mid 20s.

On 12/16/93, LILLIAN PITTAWAY, (703) 683-5599 advised that she had known CASOLARO for approximately ten years and at one time was very close to him, however, after she met her husband her contact with CASOLARO lessened. She stated that she knew he was going to West Virginia but because she was not personally interested in his work, never knew any of the details in regard to what he was dealing with but knew that he was getting much too involved with very bad people. She indicated, however, that during her last conversation with CASOLARO on August 1, 1991, CASOLARO indicated to her that he was going to meet with a person who is going to give him the biggest tip.

PITTAWAY continued that she agrees with her husband that CASOLARO more that likely committed suicide, that she felt he was self destructive, and that he was becoming obsessed with his octopus conspiracy "stuff" and that his definite abuse of alcohol affected his reasoning up until the end. She stated that CASOLARO was a troubled person in the end that he was not happy and further believed that other friends and even his brother, Dr. TONY CASOLARO were coming to the opinion that perhaps he did commit suicide because of the change in his personality.

CUELLAR advised that he met CASOLARO approximately two (2) times after their original meeting and because of his involvement with the Southern Command, traveled extensively which prevented him from talking at any great length with CASOLARO either in person or on the telephone. CUELLAR recalled that during the conversation that he had with CASOLARO at FITZGERALD'S RESTAURANT, CASOLARO questioned as to his knowledge of certain individuals in Washington, D.C., including PETER VIDENIEKS. CUELLAR advised CASOLARO that he was dating DIONNE DAVIES, who worked with PETER VIDENIEKS' wife, BARBARA, and that BARBARA and DIONNE were employed in Senator BIRD's office on Capitol Hill. He told CASOLARO that VIDENIEKS was just a social acquaintance of his. CASOLARO insisted that CUELLAR introduce him to the VIDENIEKS because of VIDENIEKS' possible involvement in what CASOLARO was working on. CUELLAR continued that CASOLARO was very persistent in his demands that CUELLAR introduce him to VIDENIEKS and even had LYNN KNOWLES call him to increase the pressure saying that he should do this as a friend for CASOLARO. CUELLAR acquiesced and contacted VIDENIEKS and told him of CASOLARO's interest in him. VIDENIEKS indicated to CUELLAR that he might meet with CASOLARO, but indicated to CUELLAR he "was done with that and there was no need to go into it anymore."

CUELLAR stated that he dated LYNN on and off for a few months after being introduced to her and CASOLARO in May, 1991, but because of his military profession, he traveled extensively out of the country. Because of this travel, his relationship with LYNN KNOWLES did not materialize and his contacts with CASOLARO became less numerous. As he stated above, CUELLAR advised he met with CASOLARO on three (3) or four (4) occasions total and during each of the conversations, CASOLARO would question as to his knowledge of Special Operations and Special Forces. CUELLAR was very candid with CASOLARO by stating that CASOLARO could not believe all of the information told to him by former members of Special Forces because he found from his experience that prior members embellished their stories extensively as to what they had accomplished when they were members of the Special Forces Unit. CASOLARO brought up one (1) individual in particular, whom CUELLAR could not remember and advised that he was going to meet this person in California. CUELLAR again cautioned CASOLARO not to believe everything he heard from former Special Forces operatives, that he could be led astray by their tall tales and information and it was better off that CASOLARO take somebody with him because you could not always trust these people. CUELLAR advised that he believes that this was the same person that CASOLARO was going to meet in Martinsburg, West Virginia, but because he could not remember the person's name, was uncertain as to the authenticity of this information.

CUELLAR advised that three (3) to four (4) weeks prior to CASOLARO's death, he left for Panama and was advised of CASOLARO's death through a phone call to LYNN KNOWLES. CUELLAR returned from Panama to attend CASOLARO's funeral, met members of CASOLARO's family, but has not had any contact with either family members or CASOLARO's associates since that time.

CUELLAR recalled that during his last conversation with CASOLARO, which occurred prior to his trip to Panama, that CASOLARO confided in him that his publisher was extremely upset with him, that he was feeling the pressure to produce a book from his investigation and that CASOLARO became so wrapped up in this investigation and desperate to publish a story that he lost perspective. He further learned from CASOLARO that he was close to losing his house, because of financial manipulations and during one (1) conversation, questioned CASOLARO as to how he made money. CASOLARO replied that he was living on money that his family had left him, but again stated that he was feeling the pressure to produce something from his investigation. CUELLAR again advised that during this conversation, he again cautioned CASOLARO to not readily accept everything that he heard from people that he was talking to, in particular persons involved in Special Operations and was candid and honest with CASOLARO in his assessment of CASOLARO's investigation. He continued that CASOLARO did not discuss many of the details of his investigation, but from what CUELLAR could determine, he was attempting to prove various conspiracy theories involving members of the government. Again, CUELLAR advised CASOLARO that it would be difficult to prove and found that some of these theories were very far fetched.

Subject: CASOLARO REVIEW

FOIA(b)(7) - (C)
36 CFR 1256.58 - Law Enforcement

On 1/6/94, WENDY WEAVER was interviewed at HOGATES RESTAURANT, Washington, D.C., and advised that she resides on a boat which is docked behind the restaurant. She stated she could be reached at her employment at telephone number (202) 337-0700. WEAVER was advised of the purpose of the interview and supplied the following information:

WEAVER stated that she had had a serious relationship with DANNY CASOLARO on and off for the eight (8) years prior to his death and that she was his first girlfriend after he had become divorced from his wife. She recalled that when she first started dating DANNY, DANNY's son, TREY, was eight (8) or nine (9) years of age, that DANNY dedicated his life to TREY because he was "crushed" as a result of the divorce. She continued by stating that their relationship was on and off because of CASOLARO's womanizing. She advised that he was gregarious, full of life and would talk to anyone. She recounted an incident in front of the MAYFLOWER HOTEL in 1990, wherein DANNY was able to engage a street person in a conversation and provided the street person with some money, showing his compassion and ability to talk with anyone from that low level to high officials in the government.

WEAVER advised that she did not know who DANNY was going to meet in Martinsburg, West Virginia, but believed that the person he was going to meet, he had met before in Martinsburg. He had mentioned to her that he was going to meet someone connected with the INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE (IRS), but not connected with the IRS Center in Martinsburg, West Virginia. She advised that while DANNY was in West Virginia, he did not call, that he never called when he was on the road, and that he was too proud to call collect.

WEAVER advised that CASOLARO came from a strong Catholic family and revered his father during his juvenile years and was deeply hurt by his parent's divorce. Following the divorce, CASOLARO hated his father and became much closer to his mother, until he reconciled his differences with his father in his late teens. She stated that CASOLARO's father never put pressure on DANNY to be like him (a physician) and respected DANNY for what he was. She stated that from her knowledge of DANNY, she learned that DANNY left home when he was a teenager and wandered to many locations, including South America. She advised that he never regretted not finishing college and that he firmly believed in his abilities as a writer. WEAVER further stated that he had a very good relationship with his siblings, that he was very hurt with his sister's suicide, and that he was very well aware of how hurt his mother had been when his sister committed suicide. She again advised that it was a strong Catholic family and that he went to church regularly when he was a child, but terminated that practice when he grew up.

WEAVER further advised that his marriage broke up because his wife, TERILL, [REDACTED] was very abusive to DANNY. She recalled DANNY recounting many stories of her walking out and leaving him alone with their son TREY. She stated that DANNY was guilty of one (1) slight indiscretion during his relationship with TERILL and that she never let him forget it. He adored his wife and, as she stated above, when she left, he put all of his efforts into TREY and developed a very good relationship with his son. TREY, however, experienced the typical teenage problems and DANNY became frustrated with him when he dropped out of school, prior to his graduating from high school. She stated, however, that TREY was a good kid and that he was presently employed as a ski instructor in Colorado.

WENDY advised that she believed that DANNY had good self-esteem and for the most part maintained an even personality. She admitted that he was very depressed on two (2) occasions of his life, namely his divorce from TERILL and his failure to consummate a good business deal in regard to the sale of his computer newsletter. She stated that DANNY was too trusting, that he was always living in a dream world and that he was devastated by being cheated out of the computer newsletter by a local attorney. She advised that he always bounced back from his depressions and that he had helped her on many occasions when she was down. She further stated that she found him to be a steady, genuine, gregarious person.

WEAVER continued by stating that he was not disappointed in himself with the failure of his Watergate story and theory. He claimed that he was scooped by the Washington Post and that he firmly believed that he was on the right track, even though he did not get credit for it. She further stated that he felt good about the books that he had written (the writer did not mention the Vanity Press issue) and stated to her that he expected his work in regard to "the Octopus Theory" would result in either a book or a television script. She admitted that he was disappointed and hurt that he had been unable to get a publisher for his book prior to his death, but felt that he would eventually find somebody to publish his story. She again stated that he felt good about himself, that he had many friends, but that he could not experience enough female companionship.

She admitted that DANNY became obsessive with his stories, "like most writers do when they are close to breaking a big story." She stated that during the Summer of 1991, DANNY would work all hours, that he would never sleep, that he ate little, but suffered no weight loss. She advised that during the Summer of 1991, she drew away from DANNY because of his obsessiveness with his story and feels guilty for doing so. This obsessiveness of DANNY's also occurred during his research and investigation into the Watergate Story, but that after the failure of that story, he became himself again. She advised, however, that DANNY became all consumed with his Octopus Theory, but was jubilant with the prospect of solving the mystery.

WEAVER reflected that DANNY was fearful of ROBERT BOOTH NICHOLS, in that he believed all of the stories that he had heard about NICHOLS. She related that she was present during DANNY's conversation with NICHOLS in a Washington, D.C. restaurant in Summer of 1991, and stated that to the best of her knowledge, NICHOLS did not beat up anyone at the bar, that he acted mysteriously, that he did not brag about his connections with organized crime and that when DANNY was away from the table, warned her about DANNY getting too involved.

WEAVER stated that during 1991, DANNY began complaining of his vision and at times used her glasses in order to read. She further observed that he had certain weaknesses in his limbs and couldn't perform various simple tasks around the house. She stated that DANNY drank a lot of alcohol, but was a social drinker and according to WEAVER, did not drink in order to mask his feelings. She stated that he would get drunk from two (2) to three (3) times per week and stated, however, that he did not use drugs. She advised that CASOLARO slept well when he was not working on a story and reiterated that he was never moody, that he always a gregarious, genuine and a happy-go-luck individual.

WEAVER joked that DANNY always wore the same type of clothing, by wearing a blue shirt, white shorts and tennis shoes in the summer and a blue shirt, jeans and tennis shoes or dress shoes during the winter. She advised that he had a closet full of these same types of clothes, but that he was a clean person in his appearance, but did not maintain a clean house. She advised that the house was cleaned by DANNY's neighbor, OLGA, who cleaned the place on a regular basis and that DANNY was not status conscious. WEAVER advised that one (1) of DANNY's strengths was that he was a genuine friend to everyone that he met, but that his main weakness was his inability to live in the real world, which resulted perhaps in the failure of his marriage and his failure of his computer newsletter. She advised that she believed that he handled stress well, by the fact that he helped her out on many occasions and that even though he was concerned with many issues, relied upon his family and friends for support. As she stated before, CASOLARO did not attend church, except for Christmas and Easter and to the best of her knowledge, and did not have strong religious beliefs.

WEAVER advised that CASOLARO was very prudish in regard to sex, that he would generally wrap himself up with an article of clothing when he left the bed, that he would close the door to the bathroom, and would not bathe with her on a regular basis. She advised that this is one (1) of the reasons why she does not believe that CASOLARO committed suicide, because she believes that he would not allow himself to be found naked and he didn't like the sight of blood. WEAVER concluded the interview by stating that she was concerned and confused with the incident wherein DANNY went off the road, but believes that it was a legitimate accident at WEBSTER's house, where DANNY fell off the roof. WEAVER again advised that based upon her extensive knowledge and association with CASOLARO, that she strongly believes that CASOLARO's death was not a suicide, but could not offer any explanation or motive for someone to murder CASOLARO, other than the fact that CASOLARO had learned too much on too many important people.

ROBERT BOOTH NICHOLS, Los Angeles, California, telephone number (818) 990-8170, was interviewed telephonically on 1/11/94. NICHOLS had been contacted in order to arrange an interview the following week, however, NICHOLS advised that he would be leaving town shortly and would be out of the country for approximately thirty (30) days. NICHOLS stated that he would be delighted to speak to the interviewing agent, at which time the interview was conducted telephonically.

NICHOLS advised that he was shocked with CASOLARO's death when he was informed by his wife and stated that he does not know the identity of the person CASOLARO was meeting with in West Virginia. He stated that he did not even know that CASOLARO had made a trip to Martinsburg, West Virginia. He began the conversation by stating that he had very little involvement with CASOLARO or involvement with what ever CASOLARO was doing and that at no time did he issue any threats to CASOLARO or any overt warnings. NICHOLS continued that CASOLARO first contacted him about one (1) year prior to his death in order to ask him questions pertaining to different individuals connected with the Cabazon Indian Reservation in Indio, California, and with other persons that he, CASOLARO, associated with his octopus theory. NICHOLS stated that he did not know ninety-nine percent (99%) of the people CASOLARO asked him about, but provided the information CASOLARO requested in regard to the Cabazon Indian Reservation. NICHOLS explained that CASOLARO had met MICHAEL RICONOSCIUTO and that RICONOSCIUTO had provided CASOLARO with his name in regard to the Cabazon Indian Reservation. NICHOLS advised that he was at one (1) time involved with the Cabazon Indian Reservation, however, he terminated his relationship when he did not receive the assurances from those individuals associated with the Cabazon Indian Reservation that the United States Government was completely aware of the business practices being conducted at that location. As a result of RICONOSCIUTO's mentioning NICHOLS' name, CASOLARO attempted to develop a relationship with him in order to "pick his brain".

NICHOLS continued that CASOLARO had stated to him that he was going to resolve the INSLAW matter. NICHOLS recalled talking with CASOLARO on the Monday or Tuesday before his death, at which time CASOLARO had stated to him that he was going to the West Coast to the Cabazon Indian Reservation in Indio, California, where he said he was hoping to wrap things up. CASOLARO at that time mentioned that he was meeting with a possible Palestinian in this regard. He sounded confident, was not depressed, and acted as if he had really come into something. He explained to NICHOLS that he wanted to show this proof to NICHOLS and indicated that he might travel to Europe to meet with NICHOLS in order to show him this proof.

NICHOLS recalled that he spoke with CASOLARO a number of times on the phone and met CASOLARO once in Washington, D.C. He recalls that CASOLARO picked him up at the airport and took him to the CLYDE'S RESTAURANT in Tysons Corner, Virginia, where they met with a gentleman by the name of PITTOWAY and then went to his hotel, where they talked until 2:00 a.m. On the following day, NICHOLS spent the entire time with CASOLARO and WENDY WEAVER in and around the Washington, D.C. area, and on the following day, CASOLARO again took him to the airport. NICHOLS stated that at no time during these two and a half (2 1/2) days did he ever observe CASOLARO in the possession of any papers, notebooks, folders and/or briefcases.

During his relationship with CASOLARO, NICHOLS stated that he did warn CASOLARO in regard to his dealing with RICONOSCIUTO and RICONOSCIUTO's associates. He stated that he was well aware that RICONOSCIUTO was a convicted drug dealer and felt that CASOLARO was endangering himself by dealing with RICONOSCIUTO's friends in the Seattle, Washington area and warned CASOLARO that he could get killed if he met with the wrong people.

NICHOLS recalled that CASOLARO had mentioned to him that he, CASOLARO, had met a person by the name of JOE CUELLAR at a bar in Northern Virginia. He advised that CASOLARO claimed that the circumstances in meeting CUELLAR were strange, in that CUELLAR was the one who initiated the conversation and engaged CASOLARO in a conversation pertaining to his knowledge of military intelligence, special operations, and his knowledge of PETER VIDENIEKS. NICHOLS advised that he did not know anything about VIDENIEKS, but does recall that when CASOLARO took him to the airport in the Summer of 1991, that CASOLARO was on the phone at DULLES AIRPORT talking with CUELLAR in an attempt to have CUELLAR introduce him to VIDENIEKS. This, of course, was the last time that NICHOLS ever saw CASOLARO, however, had numerous conversations over the telephone after his visit to Washington, D.C.

NICHOLS advised that in retrospect, that he thought for someone who had worked so hard, that CASOLARO had come up empty-handed. He concluded that CASOLARO had developed nothing in his estimation, but believes that it is possible that he had been murdered because he had found the information supporting his theories of the theft of "promis" from INSLAW. He also speculated that CASOLARO may have found information regarding government agencies involved in narcotics and gold smuggling activities in Cyprus. He advised that the DIA or the CIA in Cyprus may have been involved in illegal activities and knew of one (1) intelligence officer who refused to return to the United States and has sought asylum in either Switzerland or Sweden because of his knowledge of illegal CIA activity in Cyprus.

NICHOLS again stated that it is absolutely false that he ever threatened CASOLARO because CASOLARO was getting to know too much. NICHOLS again stated that he believes that CASOLARO did not kill himself, because of his indebtedness, but could offer no tangible reason for CASOLARO to be murdered.

When asked as to his involvement (NICHOLS' involvement) with the FBI or other government agencies, NICHOLS advised that he has never had any business relationship with the FBI, however, admitted to passing information or acting as a source for other intelligence agencies. NICHOLS was quick to comment that none of his activities were ever considered illegal. NICHOLS again stated that he was not connected with organized crime or Japanese organized crime and wanted to ensure that the interviewing agent did not perceive him as being non-cooperative with regard to the information provided in this interview. NICHOLS stated that he would be returning to the United States during the middle of February, 1994, and could be re-contacted at the above phone number, if necessary.

The details of the above NICHOLS interview were provided to JOHN DWYER, DOJ, on 1/18/94.

John C. Dwyer, Esq.
Assistant Associate Attorney General
U.S. Department of Justice
10th Street and Constitution Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20530

Dear Mr. Dwyer:

This is a follow-up letter to the meeting at my office on Tuesday morning, March 1, 1994 between my clients, William and Nancy Hamilton of INSLAW, myself, Mr. Stephen Zipperstein, First Assistant U.S. Attorney for Los Angeles, FBI Special Agent Scott Erskine, and my co-counsel, Michael Friedlander and Philip Kellogg.

You explained at the outset of the meeting that Messrs. Zipperstein and Erskine are reviewing the death of investigative journalist, Danny Casolaro, as part of the Justice Department's review of the June 1993 investigative report on INSLAW by its Special Counsel, Nicholas J. Bua.

We regard as significant the confirmation from Special Agent Erskine during the meeting that a maid at the Sheraton Hotel in Martinsburg, West Virginia, had seen a man leave Mr. Casolaro's hotel room the Saturday morning of the death. According to Special Agent Erskine, the local police took a statement from the hotel maid in which she gave an eyewitness description of the man she saw leaving the room.

It is our understanding that the description is as follows:

A male in his 30's, with an excellent sun tan, wearing a fashionable tee-shirt, dark slacks, and deck shoes.

We recall press accounts of Mr. Casolaro's death, which describe him waiting in the hotel bar on Thursday evening for a dark-skinned man. Could that have been the same man whom the maid saw leaving Mr. Casolaro's room Saturday morning and whom she describes as having "an excellent sun tan"?

I will now deal with the answers to the several requests to INSLAW for information that were made during the meeting.

Mr. Zipperstein raised the question of whether any of INSLAW's confidential sources have alleged that Mr. Casolaro was drugged before he was allegedly murdered. As Mr. Hamilton replied, INSLAW was told by one confidential source that a drug known as ethyl alcohol absolut was administered to Mr. Casolaro before he was allegedly killed. This source told INSLAW that the drug was administered by injection into the area just above Mr. Casolaro's spine in order to deaden the nerves below his head. INSLAW was also told that the inventory lot number for the drug administered to Mr. Casolaro was 6810-00-242-3645 and the composition code was ACS-C2-H5OH-FW-46 IGL 6A-C-11-84.

A forensic pathologist, Dr. Kit Green, who worked at the CIA for 18 years, claims that the alleged inventory lot number indicates that the drug came from a U.S. Army inventory. Dr. Green's address is 1409 Cedar Bend, Bloomfield Hills, MI 48013.

Attachment A is a copy of the 27-page computer printout labelled "Criminal Division Vendor List." A procurement official for the Justice Department, in response to a question from a fact checker for a national magazine, acknowledged that this list is from the Criminal Division and that a special security clearance is normally required to gain access to it. Upon information and belief, this is a list of commercial organizations that serve as "cutouts" for the Justice Department's own covert intelligence agency, i.e., for the Criminal Division's Office of Special Investigations (OSI). As noted in the February 14, 1994 Addendum, a preliminary analysis has produced information consistent with these claims.

Attachment B is a set of documents relating to Mr. George Pender. Mr. Casolaro had described Mr. Pender to my client as a Los Angeles businessman to whom both Earl Brian and Peter Videnieks effectively reported in connection with the dissemination of stolen copies of the PROMIS software to intelligence entities. As Mr. Hamilton explained during the meeting, Mr. Casolaro, in the final several weeks of his life, confirmed to Mr. Hamilton that he was planning to visit a sensitive facility in Washington, D.C. that Mr. Casolaro said was associated with Mr. Pender. Mr. Hamilton had conveyed to Mr. Casolaro a warning from Mr. Charles Hayes not to visit the facility in question because it could result in Mr. Casolaro's death. According to INSLAW sources, the facility in question is a four story townhouse on Jackson Place just behind Blair House that was used for White House "dirty tricks" during the Reagan and Bush Administrations, that was staffed by ex-CIA employees and that was equipped with computer equipment and crypto communications devices used to access very sensitive U.S. Government intelligence, law enforcement and national security databases on American citizens.

At Mr. Zipperstein's request, INSLAW agreed to make additional inquiries about whether any of its confidential sources, in the Justice Department, U.S. intelligence agencies or elsewhere, would agree to speak with Mr. Zipperstein about anything they claim to know about Mr. Casolaro's death.

We are, of course, aware that Mr. Zipperstein served one or more tours of duty in the Justice Department's Criminal Division. You know from our meeting with you on December 16, 1993 and from earlier written submissions about the INSLAW case, how concerned we are about having any career Criminal Division lawyer included in any sensitive aspect of the Justice Department's review of the INSLAW affair.

We have explained more than once that most of our sources refuse to believe that the Justice Department can effectively investigate itself. It is even more difficult to persuade our sources to meet with an attorney who was recently part of the Criminal Division, which, we have been told, was the nerve center for the malfeasance against INSLAW.

It would help us to persuade our sources to come forward if we knew more about Mr. Zipperstein's service in the Department, and if we could argue that his contacts with persons involved in the INSLAW matter were relatively minimal. The following information would be helpful: (1) What were the dates and associated duties of the various periods of Mr. Zipperstein's service in the Justice Department's Criminal Division; (2) What are the dates and associated duties of the various periods of Mr. Zipperstein's service in the U.S. Attorney's Office for Los Angeles; (3) What involvement, if any, has Mr. Zipperstein had with the Criminal Division's Office of Special Investigations (OSI) in general or Mr. Neil Sher, in particular; (4) What involvement, if any, has Mr. Zipperstein had with the Justice Command Center; (5) What involvement, if any, has Mr. Zipperstein had with the Justice Department's Office of Security and Emergency Planning or Mr. D. Jerry Rubino; (6) What involvement, if any, has Mr. Zipperstein had with either the PROMIS software, the INSLAW affair, or any investigation by the Justice Department or an external agency into any aspect of the INSLAW affair; (7) What involvement, if any, has Mr. Zipperstein had with either of two former top Criminal Division officials from California, D. Lowell Jensen and Stephen Trott; (8) What involvement, if any, has Mr. Zipperstein had with the pending criminal investigation by his U.S. Attorney's Office in Los Angeles of Earl W. Brian and Financial News Network (FNN) for possible securities fraud; and (9) In light of the claim by some of INSLAW's sources, that disclosure of information to unauthorized persons could subject them to penalties, what security clearances are currently held by Mr. Zipperstein, FBI Special Agent Erskine, and yourself?

John C. Dwyer, Esq.
March 14, 1994

One point requires clarification. During the meeting, FBI Agent Erskine read from the notes that he had been taking during the meeting. As Mr. Hamilton pointed out to FBI Agent Erskine, the notes significantly misconstrued Mr. Hamilton's statements about Mr. Casolaro during the meeting. FBI Agent Erskine's notes quoted Mr. Hamilton as stating during the meeting that Mr. Casolaro had been "embarrassed" by his inability to develop evidence during the initial several months of the investigation. What Mr. Hamilton had, in fact, said, was that Mr. Casolaro appeared to have a fairly healthy psyche because he was not embarrassed to admit his frustrations about obtaining evidence during the initial few months of his investigation that began in August 1990. As Mr. Hamilton stated, Mr. Casolaro was as comfortable talking about the problems of the investigation as he was talking about the eventual successes of his investigation.

Finally, since our meeting of March 1, 1994, Mr. Richardson received a letter from you dated March 7, 1994. In that letter you requested copies of the following documents:

- (1) "[A] document published by the same Underseas Systems Center in 1987 that revealed that its PROMIS is not only operating at the land-based 'test facility' in Newport, but is also operational on board both attack class and 'boomer' class submarines." [Addendum, p. 8.]
- (2) "Justice Department documents that INSLAW obtained years later in litigation discovery suggest[ing] that Vaveris actually assisted Videnieks in perpetrating the sham dispute." [Addendum, p. 7.]

Attachments C and D are in response to the aforementioned requests.

FROM COMBINED DISPATCHES

ABC's "World News Tonight" telecast a photograph of former White House Deputy Counsel Vincent W. Foster Jr.'s death scene last night that it interpreted as supporting the official report that he killed himself July 20.

The photograph shows Mr. Foster's right hand clutching the gun, with his thumb caught in the trigger guard. Marks on the hand were said to be powder burns.

Network reporters said they had seen a complete set of photographs showing Mr. Foster's body. ABC said the "grim and graphic" photographs dispelled rumors that there was little or no blood at the scene. Only one color photograph was shown.

ABC also said it had seen a medical examiner's report in which "the burns and other gunpowder residue are listed as primary evidence that Foster shot himself." Although the photograph had not been shown previously, the details of the official conclusions had been reported previously by other news organizations.

The broadcast followed an unsubstantiated report Thursday in a Washington financial newsletter that government officials had privately concluded that Mr. Foster died in an apartment in suburban Virginia and his body was taken to Fort Marcy Park, off the George Washington Parkway, where it was found.

The White House emphatically denied the report, which the newsletter credited to a source in the office of Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, New York Democrat. The senator's office called the report "demented."

Mr. Foster, 48, a close friend of President and Hillary Clinton's, also was their personal lawyer. Documents related to White-water-Madison affairs were taken from Mr. Foster's office a few hours after he died, but this was not known until it was reported by The Washington Times on Dec. 20, and confirmed by the White House later that day.

The pathologists' findings, contained in the U.S. Park Police file, support the idea that Mr. Foster died from a gunshot fired at close range into his mouth that made an exit through the back of his head. Powder burns were found on the soft tissue inside his mouth. A mark on Mr. Foster's index finger was determined to have been made by its tightening on the gun's trigger.

Agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms said they found gunpowder traces on the gun discovered with Mr. Foster's body and gave the Park Police a report saying their findings were "consistent" with suicide. The New York Post has quoted paramedics who picked up the body as skeptical of the official conclusion of suicide.

Shortly after news accounts of the suicide, a witness came forward who said he saw a car with Arkansas license tags and beside it a light blue Honda sedan. A man inside the Honda, "possibly Hispanic," gave him a menacing look, the man said.

Soon after the suicide, White House Counsel Bernard Nussbaum, citing executive privilege, prevented Park Police and FBI agents from searching Mr. Foster's office.

The Park Police file confirms that Mr. Nussbaum, Clinton aide Patsy Thomasson and Margaret Williams, Mrs. Clinton's chief of staff, entered Mr. Foster's office around 10 the night he died.

Mr. Nussbaum would not allow Park Police and FBI investigators to examine Mr. Foster's personal papers and effects when they went to the White House on July 22. The agents were ordered to sit in a hallway while staff officials went through the documents. The White House officials put several items in a box to be delivered to Mr. Nussbaum's office.

The soles of Foster's shoes, police noticed, were unmarked. As they should have been, it was determined. Foster's shoes told investigators he had walked from the parking lot through an open field.

The cops started taking pictures. They took two sets before Foster was moved. The first set was taken with a 35-mm. camera. The shots are overexposed. You can see the hand and the gun, but it is not easy. The second set was Polaroids. They all came out, on the spot. The scene is very simple. There is a body, legs out, on a hillside. Very little blood. You can see a powder burn from the cylinder blast on Foster's right hand.

The clothes were all bagged by the Park Police and preserved. If for some reason they need to be looked at, say to find imagined carpet fibers from an equally imagined safehouse, they can be vacuumed and searched.

Moronic things were done later. Bernard Nussbaum, the President's lawyer, did many. The Park Police were assured on the first day that Foster's office would be sealed. But when six investigators showed up to inspect it the next day (two FBI agents, two Justice Department lawyers and two Park Police cops), Nussbaum refused to let them in. The office hadn't been sealed by Secret Service. The investigators were told to sit in chairs, backs to the walls, 15 feet from Foster's desk. Documents were displayed by Nussbaum. "No one knew or cared about Whitewater then," said one investigator. "We had a suicide to investigate. We could have been sitting on a case of Whitewater documents and wouldn't have cared or noticed."

NUSSBAUM'S ire

One FBI agent stood up to stretch while in Foster's office. Nussbaum yelled angrily, accusing him of trying to peek at Foster's papers. Nussbaum said repeatedly, "We can't show you this, this is personal." The cops, a Park Police investigator and captain, were furious. Personal notes, especially in a suicide case, are important. "Why can't you just handle this as a normal case?" Nussbaum asked at one point.

"Because this isn't a normal case," said chief investigator from the park police, Peter Markland.

"Why not?" Nussbaum said.

"Because if this was a normal case I'd have all of the dead guy's files in the back seat of my car," Markland said.

No one can say why Foster killed himself. Only that he did. The coverup, if there was one, started with Nussbaum. The President's lawyer acted like someone with a client who had something to hide. "I thought they all should have been arrested for obstruction of justice," said one investigator familiar with the suicide investigation.

There is one more mystery to decipher.

There is one small triangle-shaped piece of the so-called suicide note still missing. It is about an inch and a half wide and from the bottom, right-hand part of the paper. It is not a part of the main content. It could be a date, investigators believe. The Park Police, and FBI investigators, still aren't sure the note is real. Who tears up a note into 28 pieces, then throws it in his briefcase for safekeeping?

The briefcase in which a White House assistant claims she later found the note on July 26 had been previously inspected for notes by Markland in Foster's office on July 21.

You are asked to believe that Markland, who was looking for a note, didn't see 28 pieces of bright yellow paper in Foster's own briefcase. There is also the note itself. Yes, the folded and torn note was written by Foster. The Park Police handwriting expert, Sgt. Lochart, is sure of that.

But it doesn't sound suicidal, necessarily. This could just be the musings of a desperate man turned into a suicide note by someone working for Nussbaum. It's not like the author can come back to say, "That's not what I mean." The note isn't dated by either Foster or the people who analyzed it for the Park Police.

Foster did, however, write something nasty about the FBI. He called them liars. The Park Police, when they saw this, believed the dead man's charge interesting. The FBI was investigating the case with them from the first day. But just to be safe, the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms was asked to inspect Foster's suicide weapon. This was done to keep the FBI away. Handwriting analysis was done by the Park Police for the same reason. If the guy who killed himself hates the FBI, why give them his gun and note to analyze two months later? The Park Police have met Nussbaum. They have seen the White House in action. Why should they create the opportunity for new problems? This was alert, investigative thinking by the U.S. Park Police.

THE UNFOSTERED D.C. SUSPICIONS

Aide's suicide is confirmed by heads-up cops

McALARY

IT is not the ranting of some conspiracy theorist. It is not the rhetoric of some Clinton supporter. The U.S. Park Police report on the death of Deputy White House Counsel Vince Foster is a simple story from a police blotter.

It has been accepted by special Whitewater prosecutor Robert Fiske. It has been accepted by his lead investigator, former Manhattan prosecutor Ronald Lankler, although he isn't saying as much.

Most of what happened in Fort Marcy Park on July 21 has remained secret. The Park Police report has only been reviewed once, by the Daily News. But we are now familiar with its specific conclusions. Investigators, who do not wish to be identified, have been interviewed. This is the final report on their probe into one man's desperate act.

In the last second of life, Vincent Foster placed a pistol barrel deep in his mouth, grabbing the butt with both hands. The White House lawyer was seated on a grassy hill at a 45-degree angle, a Civil War cannon behind him. No one knows what Foster was thinking, only what he did next. He pulled the trigger back with his right thumb.

The bullet escaped the top part of his head. He fell back dead, his arms falling to his sides, his legs straightening out. The gun remained in his right hand, stuck in the trigger guard. Later, after photographs were taken, an investigator would have to move the dead man's thumb just to free the pistol.

The investigation into Foster's death was handled ably by the U.S. Park Police, a unit that has suffered terribly from gossip and second-guessing. The FBI was with them at every step of the way. There are no loose ends.

The first thing the cops heard after Foster's suicide was: coverup. The body was discovered by a park maintenance worker who had slipped into the area for a quiet midday drink. He reported finding the body, but then made up a story about having seen a white van. He has since recanted the white van story, admitting it was created to cover up his own behavior.

The first cop to arrive was a patrol officer named Fornshill. Calling for backup, Park Police investigators started to show up. The first thing they noticed, apparently, was Foster's car in the parking lot. Foster had left his suit jacket behind in the car, White House credentials in the pocket. His wallet was also in the car, the doors unlocked. No one at the scene had ever heard of Vincent Foster.

One investigator noticed the White House credentials, spotted the Arkansas plates on the Toyota and decided, "Alert Secret Service. This could be a friend of the President."

The principal forensic investigator, Pete Simonello, inspected the body. The crime scene belonged, mostly, to him.

There was only a little blood, Simonello wrote, on the front of Foster's body. The dead lawyer's right thumb was stuck in the trigger guard. Simonello had to pry the pistol out of Foster's hand. He saw powder burns on the right hand. Ballistics tests later confirmed Simonello's original belief that Foster had been holding the barrel with his right hand. The gun had been deep in Foster's mouth, Simonello realized, well behind his still-intact teeth. The medical examiner found obvious powder burns on Foster's palate and tongue.

No one heard the shots, investigators determined, because Foster's head served as a kind of grisly gun silencer. There was no indentation of any kind on the index finger. His body, despite what you read, was never moved by anyone.

In death, Vincent Foster was discovered lying oddly straight. To onlookers, Foster looked to be asleep. Professionals could see more.

Most of Foster's blood had come out the back of his head though an exit wound. The bullet, which exited through the top of the sitting lawyer's head, could not be found. It was shot from the top of the knoll, cannonlike. The Park Police brought in metal detectors but never found the slug.

The blood wasn't obvious to paramedics. It had flowed down the back of Foster's shirt and then down the hill into his pants.

"That meant Vince Foster died right on the hill where he was sitting," said one investigator.

The body had not been moved from its resting place 20 feet in front of the cannon. It wasn't moved until after 8 p.m., at least three hours after the shooting. Blood lividity is curious. In dead bodies, pools form. The pools cannot be disturbed by movement without showing signs. There were none.

lice investigators but refused to let them inspect any of Foster's papers, rapidly identifying them in a way the investigators found incomprehensible.

It was during this search—not, as some have reported, during a late night visit to Foster's office the night of his death—that Nussbaum removed Whitewater-related documents that later were transferred to President Clinton's personal attorney, David Kendall. Foster had been handling the preparation of Whitewater's overdue corporate tax returns.

Federal law enforcement officials say they have no evidence that Foster was concerned or worried about Whitewater, an issue that at that point had largely sunk from public view. But they say there are other reasons to be concerned about the thoroughness of the park police investigation: A torn-up, undated note written by Foster suggesting his job despair was not turned over to the park police until more than a week after his death, and no finger or palm prints were ever identified.

The park police never reviewed entries in Foster's office computer nor did they interview potentially key witnesses, such as Brantley Buck, the Rose Law Firm partner who placed one of the last known phone calls to Foster the morning of his death. Park police investigators established that Foster tried to return the call but never got through. He placed the call shortly before he left his office at 1 p.m., the last time he was seen alive.

Later news reports revealed that Buck was handling an internal law firm inquiry into the billing practices of former partner Webster L. Hubbell, Foster's close friend who now serves as associate attorney general.

The park police also never interviewed Clinton, who spoke to Foster for about 20 minutes by phone the night before Foster's death. Clinton has never explained all the matters the two discussed that evening.

Asked recently about the suicide on CNN's "Larry King Live," Clinton said curtly: "I don't think we know any more than in the beginning because I just really don't believe there is any more to know. You know, he left a note; he was profoundly depressed."

Leach accuses White House of gagging regulators

By Michael Hedges
THE WASHINGTON TIMES

Rep. Jim Leach says the Clinton White House has "gagged" federal regulators who reported possible criminal impropriety to the Justice Department in the Whitewater-Madison affair.

What's more, the Iowa Republican said Whitewater-Madison special counsel Robert B. Fiske Jr.'s efforts this week to delay congressional hearings into the affair are having a "chilling effect" on the congressional process.

Mr. Leach's comments, made in a letter to Mr. Fiske released yesterday, were immediately denounced by the White House as a Republican attempt to score points against the Democratic administration.

In his letter to Mr. Fiske, Mr. Leach said he was "particularly concerned that officials at the Kansas City RTC [Resolution Trust Corp.] office are being gagged and possibly coerced by the RTC office in Washington."

The RTC, which manages the savings and loan cleanup, is investigating the failure of an Arkansas thrift linked to President Clinton and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Steve Katsanos, spokesman for the Washington RTC office, said: "I have no idea what Mr. Leach is talking about."

Jane Jankowski, spokeswoman for the RTC's office in Kansas City, Mo., headquarters for the region that includes Little Rock, Ark., said: "We have no comment on the Leach letter."

Asked about the letter at a press breakfast yesterday, Mr. Leach said: "I'm suggesting the White House very improperly intruded in this process."

He added that there was a "distinct possibility" that Mr. Clinton has interfered in proceedings against himself, referring to meetings between top White House aides and the RTC's acting director, Deputy Treasury Secretary Roger C. Altman.

In his letter, Mr. Leach also said he is concerned that Mr. Fiske's "public lobbying of Congress has had the effect of sending a chilling precedent ... for the majority party which controls the machinery of Congress to delay, defer or avoid its constitutional responsibilities."

The moderate Republican noted that congressional hearings during Watergate helped uncover new facts and that a recent Senate hearing prompted Mr. Altman to admit for the first time that he and other Treasury officials had briefed the White House on the RTC's probe of Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan.

Madison was owned by a former business partner of the Clintons', and its failure cost taxpayers more than $50 million.

Mr. Leach, ranking GOP member of the House Banking Committee, added that he would readily delay hearings for "a week or two" to let Mr. Fiske interview some 40 witnesses the Republican wants to question in a March 24 Banking Committee oversight hearing on the RTC.

The RTC has declined to give Mr. Leach documents he said he needs to examine the Whitewater-Madison matter.

"Mr. Leach is an individual member of Congress. He does not have the authority of the [Banking] committee," said Mr. Katsanos, RTC spokesman. "As an individual member of Congress, he does not have the authority to look into any RTC file he wants to."

The White House quickly accused Mr. Leach of seeking to make political capital out of Whitewater-Madison. "It's pretty clear that there's a very organized effort on the Hill among the Republicans [to make] a political issue out of this," said Clinton spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers.

A simmering feud between Mr. Leach and Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, Texas Democrat and Banking Committee chairman, erupted after Mr. Leach sent his letter to Mr. Fiske.

Mr. Gonzalez sent a letter to the RTC, saying, "The Banking Committee is not conducting an investigation of Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan at this time." He added that Mr. Leach's request for RTC documents wasn't supported by House rules.

The Gonzalez letter prompted Mr. Leach to say it was "unprecedented" for one member of Congress to tell a federal agency to deny another member information.

Conspiracy Theorists Find Foster Case Hard to Resist

Rumors Abound Despite Lack of Supporting Evidence

By Michael Isikoff
Washington Post Staff Writer

Sherman Skolnick, self-styled "citizens" investigator and conspiracy expert, once devoted his energies to uncovering the mysteries of the Kennedy assassination and Watergate. But these days, Skolnick is hard at work unraveling a more recent conundrum: the death of deputy White House counsel Vincent Foster.

Based on information he says he learned from an unidentified Secret Service "consultant" with "underworld ties," Skolnick claims that Foster actually was murdered by a three-man hit squad from Germany. "They snuck Foster out of the lower level of the White House, then they had a Foster double leave his office and go somewhere else," said Skolnick, who links the death to an aborted coup against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and the firing of FBI Director William S. Sessions.

Skolnick's theories may be wholly lacking in supporting evidence. But he recently has been airing them on a public access cable television show in Chicago. He is one more volunteer in a burgeoning army of conspiracy theorists who are springing up around the Foster case and confounding the Clinton White House.

In recent weeks, the events surrounding the July 20 suicide of President Clinton's boyhood friend have been the subject of a seeming avalanche of speculative news reports, rumors and gossip that is fast turning Foster's death scene at Fort Marcy Park in Northern Virginia into a 1990s version of Dealy Plaza. One widely circulated theory has Foster driven to suicide by news of an imminent FBI raid in Little Rock, Ark., linked to the Whitewater affair. Another, actively being probed by Republican investigators, connects Foster's death with the unsolved execution-style murder of a former Clinton campaign security official in Little Rock last September.

Yet a third theory, reported last week by a financial newsletter, has Foster dying in a Northern Virginia safe house used by senior White House aides—a report that caused the stock market to plunge and prompted a vehement White House denial.

"How is it acceptable that completely unsubstantiated rumors become the fodder for legitimate news organizations?" said White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers when asked about the report. "Since when are we in the position of having to prove a negative?"

David Smick, a former top aide to Republican presidential hopeful Jack Kemp, is co-owner of the newsletter that published the unsubstantiated story.

Then there is conservative political activist Floyd Brown. As chairman of Citizens United, Brown has employed two full-time investigators probing Foster's death and circulated his "findings" in regular faxes to news organizations.

Perhaps the most persistent of the Foster stories suggests that, contrary to the official findings of the U.S. Park Police, the White House aide was murdered. This view gained circulation in January when the New York Post quoted George Gonzalez, a Fairfax County paramedic who was the first medically trained person to reach Foster's body.

Gonzalez said the scene was unlike other suicides he had observed, describing how Foster's body was lying neatly on a gentle incline with a .38-caliber revolver in one hand. "Usually a suicide by gunshot is a mess," Gonzalez said. Yet Gonzalez said there was only a "thin trickle of blood" in the corner of Foster's mouth. He said Foster's body was laid out neatly "as if ready for a coffin."

Gonzalez's observations quickly were pounced upon by conspiracy buffs in part because the official park police report, including the Fairfax County coroner's autopsy, never had been released by the Justice Department. Now, the release has been blocked pending further investigation by special counsel Robert B. Fiske Jr.

But federal law enforcement officials say that some of Gonzalez's recollections are directly contradicted by police photographs taken at the scene as well as a statement filed that evening by park police investigator John Rolla, who arrived about 20 minutes after Gonzalez.

Rolla, whose written observations are part of the park police report, reported seeing blood in Foster's nose and on his mouth, right shoulder and underneath his head—an observation further bolstered by photographs, one of which was shown by ABC on its Friday night news program.

Rolla also reported that "blood on the ground and on his shirt was still wet"—a finding consistent with the conclusion that the death took place several hours earlier at the park and not somewhere else.

Law enforcement officials said other forensic evidence in the park police report supports the suicide finding: the black powder burns on Foster's hand and mouth, the absence of defensive wounds and the position of Foster's right hand, with his thumb trapped in the trigger of an antique Colt revolver owned by his family.

"There's absolutely nothing to lead the police or the medical examiner to believe that anything happened other than a suicide," said one federal law enforcement official who has reviewed the evidence. "The guy was no more killed in an apartment in Northern Virginia than there is a man in the moon."

Fiske has pledged to conduct a "thorough and complete" investigation of Foster's death. In court papers filed in New York, Fiske said he will retain outside forensic experts and pathologists and will ask Russell

Hardin Jr., a Houston homicide prosecutor, to review the findings.

While comfortable with the suicide conclusion, many federal law enforcement officials said there are other unsettling aspects of the Foster case that have already piqued the interest of Fiske's investigators.

Park police found ample reason to conclude that Foster was despondent about his life in Washington and had sought the names of psychiatrists. But their efforts to discover if there were any particular work-related concerns that caused him to take his life were repeatedly blocked by White House counsel Bernard Nussbaum. Nussbaum recently resigned the counsel's job, in part because of criticism over his handling of the Foster suicide investigation.

Invoking "executive privilege," he refused to permit park police investigators to enter Foster's office the day after his death. The next day, Nussbaum agreed to conduct his own "search" in the presence of Justice Department lawyers, FBI agents and park po-

John C. Dwyer, Esq.
Assistant Associate Attorney General
U.S. Department of Justice
10th Street and Constitution Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20530

Dear Mr. Dwyer:

This is a follow-up letter to the meeting at my office on Tuesday morning, March 1, 1994 between my clients, William and Nancy Hamilton of INSLAW, myself, Mr. Stephen Zipperstein, First Assistant U.S. Attorney for Los Angeles, FBI Special Agent Scott Erskine, and my co-counsel, Michael Friedlander and Philip Kellogg.

You explained at the outset of the meeting that Messrs. Zipperstein and Erskine are reviewing the death of investigative journalist, Danny Casolaro, as part of the Justice Department's review of the June 1993 investigative report on INSLAW by its Special Counsel, Nicholas J. Bua.

We regard as significant the confirmation from Special Agent Erskine during the meeting that a maid at the Sheraton Hotel in Martinsburg, West Virginia, had seen a man leave Mr. Casolaro's hotel room the Saturday morning of the death. According to Special Agent Erskine, the local police took a statement from the hotel maid in which she gave an eyewitness description of the man she saw leaving the room.

It is our understanding that the description is as follows:

A male in his 30's, with an excellent sun tan, wearing a fashionable tee-shirt, dark slacks, and deck shoes.

We recall press accounts of Mr. Casolaro's death, which describe him waiting in the hotel bar on Thursday evening for a dark-skinned man. Could that have been the same man whom the maid saw leaving Mr. Casolaro's room Saturday morning and whom she describes as having "an excellent sun tan"?

I will now deal with the answers to the several requests to INSLAW for information that were made during the meeting.

Mr. Zipperstein raised the question of whether any of INSLAW's confidential sources have alleged that Mr. Casolaro was drugged before he was allegedly murdered. As Mr. Hamilton replied, INSLAW was told by one confidential source that a drug known as ethyl alcohol absolut was administered to Mr. Casolaro before he was allegedly killed. This source told INSLAW that the drug was administered by injection into the area just above Mr. Casolaro's spine in order to deaden the nerves below his head. INSLAW was also told that the inventory lot number for the drug administered to Mr. Casolaro was 6810-00-242-3645 and the composition code was ACS-C2-H50H-FW-46 IGL SA-C-11-84.

A forensic pathologist, Dr. Kit Green, who worked at the CIA for 18 years, claims that the alleged inventory lot number indicates that the drug came from a U.S. Army inventory. Dr. Green's address is 1409 Cedar Bend, Bloomfield Hills, MI 48013.

Attachment A is a copy of the 27-page computer printout labelled "Criminal Division Vendor List." A procurement official for the Justice Department, in response to a question from a fact checker for a national magazine, acknowledged that this list is from the Criminal Division and that a special security clearance is normally required to gain access to it. Upon information and belief, this is a list of commercial organizations that serve as "cutouts" for the Justice Department's own covert intelligence agency, i.e., for the Criminal Division's Office of Special Investigations (OSI). As noted in the February 14, 1994 Addendum, a preliminary analysis has produced information consistent with these claims.

Attachment B is a set of documents relating to Mr. George Pender. Mr. Casolaro had described Mr. Pender to my client as a Los Angeles businessman to whom both Earl Brian and Peter Videnieks effectively reported in connection with the dissemination of stolen copies of the PROMIS software to intelligence entities. As Mr. Hamilton explained during the meeting, Mr. Casolaro, in the final several weeks of his life, confirmed to Mr. Hamilton that he was planning to visit a sensitive facility in Washington, D.C. that Mr. Casolaro said was associated with Mr. Pender. Mr. Hamilton had conveyed to Mr. Casolaro a warning from Mr. Charles Hayes not to visit the facility in question because it could result in Mr. Casolaro's death. According to INSLAW sources, the facility in question is a four story townhouse on Jackson Place just behind Blair House that was used for White House "dirty tricks" during the Reagan and Bush Administrations, that was staffed by ex-CIA employees and that was equipped with computer equipment and crypto communications devices used to access very sensitive U.S. Government intelligence, law enforcement and national security databases on American citizens.

At Mr. Zipperstein's request, INSLAW agreed to make additional inquiries about whether any of its confidential sources, in the Justice Department, U.S. intelligence agencies or elsewhere, would agree to speak with Mr. Zipperstein about anything they claim to know about Mr. Casolaro's death.

We are, of course, aware that Mr. Zipperstein served one or more tours of duty in the Justice Department's Criminal Division. You know from our meeting with you on December 16, 1993 and from earlier written submissions about the INSLAW case, how concerned we are about having any career Criminal Division lawyer included in any sensitive aspect of the Justice Department's review of the INSLAW affair.

We have explained more than once that most of our sources refuse to believe that the Justice Department can effectively investigate itself. It is even more difficult to persuade our sources to meet with an attorney who was recently part of the Criminal Division, which, we have been told, was the nerve center for the malfeasance against INSLAW.

It would help us to persuade our sources to come forward if we knew more about Mr. Zipperstein's service in the Department, and if we could argue that his contacts with persons involved in the INSLAW matter were relatively minimal. The following information would be helpful: (1) What were the dates and associated duties of the various periods of Mr. Zipperstein's service in the Justice Department's Criminal Division; (2) What are the dates and associated duties of the various periods of Mr. Zipperstein's service in the U.S. Attorney's Office for Los Angeles; (3) What involvement, if any, has Mr. Zipperstein had with the Criminal Division's Office of Special Investigations (OSI) in general or Mr. Neil Sher, in particular; (4) What involvement, if any, has Mr. Zipperstein had with the Justice Command Center; (5) What involvement, if any, has Mr. Zipperstein had with the Justice Department's Office of Security and Emergency Planning or Mr. D. Jerry Rubino; (6) What involvement, if any, has Mr. Zipperstein had with either the PROMIS software, the INSLAW affair, or any investigation by the Justice Department or an external agency into any aspect of the INSLAW affair; (7) What involvement, if any, has Mr. Zipperstein had with either of two former top Criminal Division officials from California, D. Lowell Jensen and Stephen Trott; (8) What involvement, if any, has Mr. Zipperstein had with the pending criminal investigation by his U.S. Attorney's Office in Los Angeles of Earl W. Brian and Financial News Network (FNN) for possible securities fraud; and (9) In light of the claim by some of INSLAW's sources, that disclosure of information to unauthorized persons could subject them to penalties, what security clearances are currently held by Mr. Zipperstein, FBI Special Agent Erskine, and yourself?

John C. Dwyer, Esq.

One point requires clarification. During the meeting, FBI Agent Erskine read from the notes that he had been taking during the meeting. As Mr. Hamilton pointed out to FBI Agent Erskine, the notes significantly misconstrued Mr. Hamilton's statements about Mr. Casolaro during the meeting. FBI Agent Erskine's notes quoted Mr. Hamilton as stating during the meeting that Mr. Casolaro had been "embarrassed" by his inability to develop evidence during the initial several months of the investigation. What Mr. Hamilton had, in fact, said, was that Mr. Casolaro appeared to have a fairly healthy psyche because he was not embarrassed to admit his frustrations about obtaining evidence during the initial few months of his investigation that began in August 1990. As Mr. Hamilton stated, Mr. Casolaro was as comfortable talking about the problems of the investigation as he was talking about the eventual successes of his investigation.

Finally, since our meeting of March 1, 1994, Mr. Richardson received a letter from you dated March 7, 1994. In that letter you requested copies of the following documents:

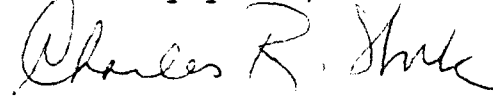

- (1) "[A] document published by the same Underseas Systems Center in 1987 that revealed that its PROMIS is not only operating at the land-based 'test facility' in Newport, but is also operational on board both attack class and 'boomer' class submarines." [Addendum, p. 8.]
- (2) "Justice Department documents that INSLAW obtained years later in litigation discovery suggest[ing] that Vaveris actually assisted Videnieks in perpetrating the sham dispute." [Addendum, p. 7.]

Attachments C and D are in response to the aforementioned requests.

Dear Mr. Work:

I am writing in response to your letter of March 14, 1994.

I am troubled by the statement in that letter regarding the "confirmation" by [redacted] of certain facts. In fact, neither [redacted] nor Steve Zipperstein confirmed any such details. Rather, we were participating in the meeting in order to determine what, if any, information the Hamiltons could provide relevant to our review of Judge Bua's report. To the extent you understood any part of our meeting as a confirmation of any facts or as constituting some sort of status report on our review, you were mistaken.

We appreciate whatever efforts you or the Hamiltons have undertaken to convince your sources who allegedly have information on Daniel Casolaro's death to come forward. With regard to the concerns raised in your letter, you should know that Associate Attorney General Hubbell has complete confidence in Mr. Zipperstein's competence and integrity. Mr. Zipperstein has been employed by the United States Attorney's Office for the Central District of California since November 1987. He was detailed to the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice from July 1992 through December 1993.

If, as a result of Mr. Zipperstein's career status, INSLAW's sources are unwilling to speak to him about Mr. Casolaro's death, I am hopeful that you will encourage them to contact me directly.

Sincerely,

John C. Dwyer

Dear Mr. Dwyer:

I am writing in response to your letter of March 17, 1994.

Immediately after you and Messrs. Zipperstein and [redacted] left the meeting in my conference room on Tuesday, March 1, 1994, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton and my two co-counsel, Philip Kellogg and Michael Friedlander, and I reviewed what had been discussed in the meeting. We all agreed that we had heard [redacted] confirm that a maid at the Sheraton Hotel in Martinsburg, West Virginia, had seen a man leave Mr. Casolaro's hotel room the morning of the death. Mr. Erskine even corrected Mr. Hamilton's statement that an FBI agent had taken a statement from the hotel maid by saying it was not the FBI but the local police who had taken the statement. Furthermore, [redacted] implied familiarity with the content of the maid's eyewitness description by volunteering that the description could fit any number of people. It was not my intention to trouble you but merely to call attention to a new fact which we view as significant.

I did not suggest in my letter that Associate Attorney General Hubbell either lacks confidence or should lack confidence in Mr. Zipperstein's competence and integrity. What I attempted to convey to you is that irrespective of what the reality within the Justice Department itself may be, potential witnesses who claim to have information potentially relevant to the investigation of Mr. Casolaro's death simply will not be forthcoming unless we can at least provide them with answers to the kinds of factual questions I posed to you in my March 14, 1994 letter. This is especially true for someone from the Criminal Division, given the Criminal Division's alleged role in the INSLAW affair. Thank you for the two answers that were provided. If more can be provided, it would help.

Since sending that letter to you, we have had two independent developments that are illustrative of this problem. Two individuals who do not know one another have each worried aloud about the impartiality and seriousness of the Zipperstein [] investigation. Each of these individuals has already talked to Messrs. Zipperstein and/or []. Each of these witnesses claims to have additional knowledge about developments during the final weekend of Mr. Casolaro's life, but to have reason to be fearful of possible reprisals if the information falls into the wrong hands.

I have been made aware of both their fears and the information they claim to know. In my opinion, if the information they claim to know is true, it would not be unreasonable for each of them to be fearful of reprisal, perhaps even physical reprisal. In my opinion, the information they claim to have is the kind of information that any serious homicide investigation would wish to obtain.

We are trying to get these people to come forward. In these circumstances, it is not unreasonable for witnesses to be suspicious of Justice Department, especially Criminal Division employees. I can assure you providing us with the answers to my questions concerning Mr. Zipperstein's possible prior involvement in this matter will help us with this task.

Sincerely yours,

Charles R. Work

Danny's life was a life of failure and disappointment. In all facets of life, he went from one failure to another. Advent of multiple sclerosis was the last straw.

Danny, in a way, scripted his own life and scripted his own death.

When Danny's father died back in '68, the whole family unit had been devastated (for a Catholic family, especially). 20 yrs later, knowing the pain and suffering for his family, he constructed a way to commit suicide, but by making it look like an accident, he attended the funeral, etc of his family. This too is a way to grant him, posthumously, the recognition that he could never hope to gain.

Suicide note - "God will let me in" is the key
